Attending Veterinarians

Last Modified:

The attending veterinarian is essential to the success of regulated facilities. They promote animal welfare through the provision of adequate veterinary care and by overseeing the animal care and use program.

Facilities are required to ensure that their attending veterinarian has the authority to direct the animal care and use program. This means attending veterinarians may receive occasional calls from our inspectors either during or after an on-site inspection to follow up on a facility's program of veterinary care. The information you provide on behalf of your client will help us ensure the animals are receiving adequate care in accordance with your guidance.

Who can be an attending veterinarian?

The Attending Veterinarian's Authority

The Attending Veterinarian's Duties

Providing Adequate Veterinary Care

Written Program of Veterinary Care

Important Conversations

Attending Veterinarian and USDA Inspections

Will citations hurt my license?

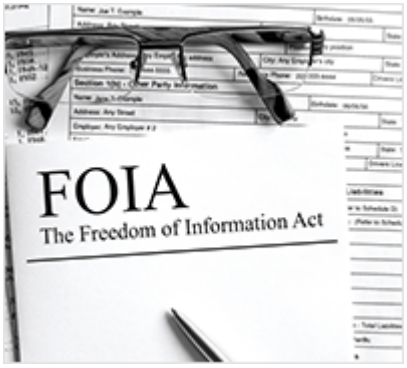

Licensing Rule and Veterinary Care for Dogs

How To Contact USDA

FOIA and Medical Records

More Information

The Attending Veterinarian (485.21 KB) [Tech Note]
El Veterinario a Cargo (493.7 KB) [Tech Note]
What All Attending Veterinarians Need to Know (YouTube)
What All Attending Veterinarians Need to Know (PDF)

Antimicrobial Resistance: Role of Attending Veterinarians at Animal Facilities (YouTube)
Antimicrobial Resistance: Role of Attending Veterinarians at Animal Facilities (PDF) (2.34 MB)

Print