USDA Launches New World Screwworm Wildlife Page for Hunters, Wildlife Professionals, and Outdoor Enthusiasts

Exciting news as hunting season kicks off across the country!

USDA has launched a New World screwworm (NWS) wildlife page designed specifically for hunters, wildlife professionals, and outdoor enthusiasts. The page brings together easy-to-use resources on NWS in wildlife, helping communities stay informed and prepared.

The site features:

- Information tailored to hunters and outdoor users, including what to look for and how to report concerns.
- A comprehensive Wildlife Partner Toolkit with ready-to-use materials—talking points, printable articles, social media posts, web copy, plus a downloadable factsheet and wallet card.
- Links to additional partner resources from the U.S. Department of the Interior

All materials are now live and available on screwworm.gov. We appreciate your help sharing these resources widely with your networks to keep communities informed and engaged as the season begins.
