

Avian Influenza is Here. Act Now to Help Stop the Spread.

Highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) is a fast-moving, deadly disease that threatens poultry across the United States and can kill entire flocks within days. Immediate action is critical.

Clean Up

Disinfect all equipment, tools, and clothing. Keep feed, water, and bedding clean.

Step Up

Wear dedicated farm boots or shoe covers. Use a footbath to disinfect after use.

Divide Up

Keep poultry separated from other animals and wild birds. Limit visitors.

Brush Up

Monitor flock health daily. Keep records current.

Biosecurity is the best defense against HPAI.

Learn more about how to protect your flock:
www.aphis.usda.gov/defend-the-flock-program

See signs of illness? Isolate sick birds. Call 1-866-536-7593, your veterinarian, or your State animal health official.

